

Doctor of Management (DM) Student Learning Outcomes

- Evaluate and apply theories of management, organization design, and leadership skills to solve challenging business problems and achieve desired organizational results.
- Apply critical and creative thinking skills to respond to emergent managerial and leadership problems.
- Create, integrate, and evaluate principles of organization theory and knowledge management to develop sustainable systems, structures, and processes.
- Apply appropriate research methods and designs to contribute original and scholarly work with practical relevance in solving complex organizational issues.
- Apply a range of ethical models of managerial decision-making to demonstrate social responsibility within their organization, industry, and community.