Equip high schoolers for life

Thinking about shifting careers to teach high school students? Now might be a good time. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, job openings for new teachers are expected to rise as a significant number of teachers reach retirement age between 2016 and 2026. Our Master of Arts in Education/Secondary Teacher Education degree is designed for adults who have no prior teaching experience or aren't yet certified but have a bachelor's degree in another discipline.

In this Secondary Education initial licensure program, you'll learn to:

- Utilize effective classroom teaching strategies
- Foster critical thinking for diverse learners
- Find and evaluate classroom resources
- Develop a classroom management plan appropriate for high schoolers
- Understand the influence of emotional, intellectual, psychological, social and cultural factors on learning

The best high school teachers give more than grades — they give young people tools to succeed in life. The next generation is waiting.

Learning outcomes

Along with the knowledge and skills related to the University Learning Goals, students who graduate from the College of Education should gain program-specific knowledge, skills and abilities. Each college or school creates a set of Program Student Learning Outcomes (PSLOs) to describe the knowledge, skills or attitudes students will possess upon completion of the program of study. By the time you complete your MBA, you should be able to perform these learning outcomes.

Program purpose statement

The Master of Arts in Education/Secondary Education is a graduate degree program intended for students with no prior teaching experience for initial teacher licensure. The program is designed for students who want to become secondary school teachers. Candidates for this program have already earned a bachelor's degree.

The program includes a clinical component requiring field experiences and student teaching above and beyond program coursework. As licensure requirements may vary by state, it's the student's responsibility to ascertain and meet licensure requirements in any state in which the student desires to practice and to contact the applicable state educator licensure agency to verify current requirements to become a licensed teacher. There may be additional qualifications and/or disqualifications applicable in order to work as a teacher with any local, state or federal entity.

The goal of accreditation is to ensure that education provided by institutions of higher education meets acceptable levels of quality. Accreditation is your assurance the University meets quality standards.

Institutional accreditation

Regional accreditation is an institution-level accreditation status granted by one of six U.S. regional accrediting bodies. Accreditation by more than one regional accrediting body is not permitted by the U.S. Department of Education.

University of Phoenix is accredited by the Higher Learning Commission (HLC), hlcommission.org. Since 1978, University of Phoenix has been continually accredited by the Higher Learning Commission and its predecessor.

Field experience

As part of this program, you'll complete a minimum of 100 hours of verified field-based experience. You'll observe teachers, carry out classroom assignments and work with students at a variety of developmental levels. This field experience is designed to prepare you for your student teaching requirement.

Student teaching

During your student teaching experience — one of the final steps to prepare you to pursue employment in the always-hiring teaching field — you'll apply your instruction and classroom management skills full time. Working under the supervision of a teacher and a University of Phoenix faculty advisor, you'll develop lesson plans, teach, work with diverse student populations and incorporate technology into the classroom.

Licensure requirements

The Master of Arts in Education/Secondary Teacher Education (MAED/TED-S) prepares candidates for initial teacher licensure as a secondary school teacher. As licensure requirements may vary by state, it's your responsibility to learn and meet licensure requirements in any state where you desire to practice.
